

MARCH 2022

GENEVA INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

Latest Publications:

South Korean Standard of Gender Correction on Family Registry in the Eyes of International Standard

Starting in 1990, South Korea has gradually dealt with a rising number of transgender cases that mostly start with a gender correction on the family registry. However, South Korea does not fully comply its administrative correction with international treaties and global standard of protecting sexual minorities. Compared with other continents' cases on gender corrections for the transgender, a current status on South Korea is analyzed and recommendations are suggested.

Adaptation and Mitigation for Coastal Communities in India

Climate change in India has an impact on coastal communities. Cities such as Mumbai and Kolkata, two vastly populated coastal cities, have started developing adaptation and mitigation plans to counter the consequences of climate change and limit the factors contributing to flood vulnerabilities.

Pillars For The New Indo-Pacific Strategy: From The Regional Perspectives

With its most recent Indo-Pacific strategy, the U.S continues its pivoting to Asia started a decade ago to counter the rising threat from China and re-establish its sphere of influence. This new strategy mainly focuses on security, climate change, or governance issues. To implement it successfully, the U.S must expand its regional cooperation, including in key areas such as defense and security, invest in high-tech and strategic infrastructure, and ensure regional financial security.

Join our team / become a contributor:

The GIIR is looking for young professionals interested in joining our team or in publishing occasional papers as external contributors. Publishing for the GIIR is open to recent graduates, researchers, university professors, members of civil society, and individuals of the private sector that have deep expertise in one of the areas of focus of the organization.

If interested: contact@giir.ch

Any feedback, questions or suggestions?
contact@giir.ch

